Meeting will be in the Albert Hall, with all the doors closed, with only qualified people present.

Tuition Raise Planned for Coming Fall

The Office of the President has announced that beginning the fall session of 1961-62 the tuition will be raised to $600 per year, an increase of $95 per year.

It is hoped that it will not be necessary to increase the fees next year.

Division of Music, the regular tuition for Loy student will be $600 per year. The extra $95 will cover all the private lessons which are required in the program. Students who are interested in music will be notified.

The move is made necessary be- cause of the increase in the number of students and the increase of the number of classes which will be offered in the fall of 1961.

Discount Cards Available Again to Loy Students

NSA discount cards will be available to the students in the bookstore today. Thursday, Friday, Monday, and Tuesday.

With these discount cards the student is able to go to any of the stores listed as members, make a purchase, and pay 10 percent less than the regular price. The money saved will be used to offset the cost of the cards.

Many students have already signed up for these cards. They are available in four categories; small, medium, large, and the full size.

The cards entitle students to a discount up to 30% at local stores.

Discount cards are available at the Student Union at 1:30 p.m. on Tuesday.

"Jim Flood, '52 Carddaal Editor"

The new edition of the '52 Carddaal is in press. Fr. Ohanlon, who was responsible for the success of the '51 Carddaal, has been elected to the editorship of the '52 Carddaal.

Flood's plans for the book include the following: 1st, a better quality book; 2nd, a better organization of the book; 3rd, a better editorial staff; 4th, a better promotion of the book.

Nietzsche's Theories Discussed By Panel

By LOU LOMBARDI and IRENE DAILEY

The last that is to exist in the will to power, according to F. Burke, is the fundamental principle upon which Nietzsche's entire philosophy rests.

Sponsored by the University of American Society, F. Burke and Eileen Burke, the President of the History Department, discussed the philosophy of Nietzsche during a meeting before an audience of about 500 people in the McKnight Hall last Sunday evening. Each of them gave a presentation, and Burke concluded the panel discussion.

Burke, the first speaker, stated the meaning of Nietzsche's philosophy that "superman" theory and his philosophy in general. Burge stated, "It is not until we learn to think through the problems of Schopenhauer, Straus, and Fuerver." Nietzsche's introduction to philosophy came through the pessimistic writings of Schopenhauer from whom Burke states that he was directly influenced. Burge said that the will to exist in the will to power is an idea whose time has not yet arrived because there would be no such thing as power.

Nietzsche's perfect solution, of course, would be to fear all will to power. Since this would be the most difficult, the next best to power would be to overcome human destiny. That is why his idea was both partly directed toward the idea that what is wrong with extens-

Straus and Fuerwell were both native to Nietzsche in his time and the latest in his philosophy. According to Fuerwell, "the idea of God is a myth. Fuerwell would not forget the idea of God by an act of the will."

Nietzsche's immortality and eternity are the two divisions of philosophy. Fuerwell's understanding in the light of his studies is a fertile ground for his opinion that Nietzsche's philosophy was a logical theory. Fuerwell states that "the idea of "might is right" would result from any form of humanism which separates itself from the other democracies and spiritual framework.

Burke's account of the first speaker on his talk about Nietzsche's Theories Discussed By Panel in the light of three distinct worldviews: the first is the "will to power," the second is the "will to truth," and the third is the "will to power." Burke notes that "Nietzsche's philosophy was a logical theory. Burke states that "the idea of God is a myth. Fuerwell would not forget the idea of God by an act of the will."

Fears Diminish As Comps Finish

Although suffering from eye problems, the Math and English group, seniors in the college's English department, now are able to smile more happily than ever before. It's all because they've finally finished their examinations.

Leaving a bit of advice is the usual temptation at a point like this, and we'll succumb to the pressure to give a few extracurricular activities, all of which have a responsibility of all the undergraduate citizens of the CU campus. Only when you feel an interest in these activities are the activities likely to set at best. We want the very best of everyone here.

60 years ago, the world of sports was a far cry from what it is today. However, the world of sports has come a long way. From the days of the horse and buggy to the days of the jet plane, the world of sports has evolved. Today, sports are enjoyed by millions of people worldwide. Whether it's football, basketball, baseball, or any other sport, everyone seems to have a favorite team or player. This may be due to the excitement and thrill that comes with watching a game or competing in one.

In the past few decades, technology has had a major impact on the world of sports. With the rise of social media, fans can now follow their favorite teams and players on a daily basis. This has led to a growth in fan engagement and has made it easier for fans to stay connected with their teams. Additionally, technology has made it possible for fans to stream games from anywhere in the world, allowing them to watch their favorite teams play regardless of their location.

Despite the advancements in technology, the essence of sports has remained the same. It's about teamwork, dedication, and a love for the game. Whether you're a professional athlete or just a casual fan, sports bring people together and create a sense of community.

As we look forward to the future of sports, it's exciting to think about the possibilities. With the advancements in technology, sports are sure to continue evolving. However, one thing is certain: the spirit of sports will always remain at the heart of the game.

New Programs for Degrees Offered by Nursing School

Programs leading to a Bachelor of Science degree in Nursing, a Master of Science in Nursing, and a Master of Science in Hospital Administration will be offered by the School of Nursing beginning in September 1951.

The former programs leading to the Bachelor of Science degree in Nursing Education, B.S. in Public Health Nursing, and the Master of Science in Nursing Education will be discontinued.

The new graduate division, which is offered a four-year integrated program, leading to the B.S. in Nursing, is not affected by this revision.

The revised Public Health program of one year will be entirely replaced by the new revised program to be offered by the National Organization for Public Health Nursing.

Formerly the B.S. in Public Health Nursing offered a two-year curriculum to students with specialization in one of the following areas: Public Health Nursing.

Under the revised program, the B.S. in Nursing can be obtained in four years.

Three Sports Threat

By BOB GREGORY

Now that two decisions have been inked into the record books for Coach Jim McDuffee's baseball squad, the sign points towards quite a successful season for the rest of the way.

The 1951 campaign has been the sign of Card pitchers in both games to go the whole distance. Much of their success in lasting the nine-inning route is due to the conditions that Coach McDuffee has stated. The men are demanded from his players and
